What Kind of World Do We Want?

WHAT KIND OF WORLD DO WE WANT?

From the beginning of the 21st century, countries of the world have started to build sustainable development that can guarantee the welfare of the current generation and future generations based on the question "What kind of world do we want?" Thus, "Sustainable environment" has become one of the concepts of the 21st century. This concept is gaining importance in the field of educational sciences. "Sustainable environment" emerges as a theme that is constantly emphasized by scientists, researchers, politicians, and other implementing bodies of society. This project, it is aimed to increase the awareness of primary school teacher candidates about the sustainable environment and to raise their awareness about the causes and effects of climate change.

Considering that learning and teaching activities take place in the social context and as a result of interaction, it is thought that analyzing and evaluating different cultures by prospective teachers is important in terms of raising individuals with 21st-century skills. The purpose of social networks, such as eTwinning, which is a part of Erasmus, is to support the creation and development of awareness of respect, tolerance, and understanding by providing the integration of young people from different countries and cultures through dialogue. With this project, it is aimed that primary school teacher candidates with different cultures use the Twinspace and work together in order to contribute to their cultural, personal, and professional development through eTwinning activities.
